

4 things Young Drivers can do to Reduce the Cost of Car Insurance

Join a parent's insurance as a named driver as early as possible. This will enable you to establish a safety record, which is crucial when you want to apply for insurance in your own name. Some companies offer discounts to young people seeking insurance in their own name if they have been a named driver.

Get a full licence as soon as possible. Having a full licence will reduce the cost of your young driver car insurance premium considerably. Savings vary, but it is possible for young drivers to save a vast amount (up to €900 or more) on the cost of his or her insurance premium simply by having a full driving licence.

Choose a car with a relatively small engine, as less powerful cars are cheaper to insure generally as well as for young drivers.

Drive carefully. The best way to reduce the cost of your motor insurance is to build up your no claims bonus. This is especially true for young drivers.
